Revised June 2017

Introduction

In order to build a firmer foundation for the middle level activities, the four middle school athletic directors developed this program. Both the middle level administration and an LPS Student Activities Task Force have approved this district-wide program.

The Middle Level Activities Program consists of four major components:

- Intramural/ Athletic Program
- Student Government Organization
- Co-curricular Activities
- Clubs

The subsequent document contains the philosophy of the program, guidelines, student outcomes and specific policies and procedures for each interscholastic/ intramural season.

Revised June 2017

Philosophy

In these years of exploration, middle school students ought to try their luck and test their wings in a wide variety of activities without undue stress and possibly destructive pressure.

The primary purpose of the intramural program is to expand the educational experience of student participants through a variety of activities. This program will allow individuals the greatest number of opportunities in which to acquire and gradually strengthen related skills.

The intramural program has become an important educational tool that can be used to develop character, promote fitness, to foster lifelong recreational habits and to instill in the individual a sense of pride and confidence.

The intramural program is for everyone; it does not discriminate. Everyone is able to participate regardless of skill level.

At the eighth grade level, the athletic program is more competitive with athletics being divided into A, B and C levels for the purpose of competition with other middle schools.

Student Objectives

Research has shown that students who are involved in extra-curricular activities are more successful overall in their academic classes.

Students who participate in the intramural/athletic program will be provided with opportunities to explore:

- Individual interests.
- Personal limits.
- Experiences they cannot acquire or learn in the formal classroom setting.
- Different channels of social, physical and emotional development.
- Feelings of membership and camaraderie.
- Lifelong leisure activities/hobbies.
- Feelings of success in school activities.
- Opportunities to build self-confidence.
- Ideals of sportsmanship.
- Opportunities to develop leadership and interpersonal skills.
